Hugo graduated in 1981 from Trinity with a BA in Economics and a Diploma in Anglo Irish Literature. He had been elected a Scholar, a Pink and a Knight of the Campanile.

He supported the Trinity Anti-Apartheid Society and declined to tour South Africa with the Irish Rugby team in 1981 as South Africa was still under the Apartheid regime. He captained Trinity and was selected to play for Ireland on 37 occasions over eight seasons winning two championships and sharing one. He toured with the British and Irish Lions tour to New Zealand in 1983.

He also played for the victorious Collingwood cup soccer side in 1979 scoring both goals in the final.

After Trinity, and Oxford, he has had distinguished career in banking, initially with Boston Consulting Group and latterly with Goldman Sachs.

He has a long involvement in Peace and Reconciliation across the island of Ireland and in British and Irish relationships. He is the Chairman of the British Irish Association, former Chairman of the Ireland Funds and board member of the Ireland Fund of Great Britain and Cooperation Ireland. He Chaired the Working Group which recommended Ireland's bid to host the Rugby World Cup of 2023

He has maintained his connection with Trinity through his work with the Trinity Centre for People with Intellectual Disabilities. He was recently appointed an Ambassador for the Centre and has been instrumental in developing the network of businesses who both help finance the centre and also provide the crucial internships and permanent roles which enable our fellow graduates realise their full potential.
